

The nicotinic acetylcholine receptor (nAChR) is extremely lipid sensitive; however few experiments have been performed characterizing it in native membranes. We plan to provide a better understanding of nAChR in their native membranes to gain deeper insight into nAChR and membranes role in health.